Interface Breaks New Ground in Singapore

Singapore complements growth activities in the Interface franchise network in Australia and New Zealand.

Irvine, CA (October 15, 2009) – “Having recently announced the addition of export factoring to our specialist portfolio of finance services, it seemed appropriate and timely to add another country to our franchise location list,” said IFG President David Banfield, at the launch of IFG’s new Singapore-based franchise.

Banfield went on to say that both Australia and New Zealand have seen good growth in terms of the demand for Interface services over the past year and small business growth in Singapore also shows excellent signs of growth.

The Interface Financial Group specializes in providing short-term working capital for small- and medium-sized businesses, businesses that are experiencing rapid, positive growth on the one hand but are finding it difficult to attract conventional funding to fuel that growth on the other. Interface, with their 37 years of industry-specific experience, fills the gap in the finance requirement and helps small businesses grow and often grow on an exponential basis.

“Small business continues to be the engine that drives the economy,” commented Banfield. “In North America it is widely accepted that some 70% of all new jobs are created by small businesses. Interface funding that helps those specific companies is, in turn, helping to create jobs and build the overall economy.”

The Interface Financial group provides a unique, “use-it-as-you-need-it” brand of financing in Canada, the United States, New Zealand, and Australia, in addition to the new base in Singapore. There are over 150 Interface offices servicing a vast array of small manufacturing and service businesses with their financing needs.
